

I would like to urge the FCC to reconsider their proposition of expanding the LPFM service. This expansion is a threat to the type of broadcast that has been so influential in my life and the lives of many of my friends and family members. We have been able to listen to radio programs without fear of what our children will hear. Since television programs do not offer the same security, we depend on radio broadcasts to keep us informed of the happenings of the world. Family oriented stations like K-LOVE have allowed us to stay informed with news reports without compromising the innocence of young listeners. I believe that it would do our children a serious injustice to disallow K-LOVE and stations like this from broadcasting programs as they currently do. Their programs are ones that encourage you and offer help with everyday occurrences. Real life situations that require intervention in order to successfully overcome them like financial difficulties, rearing children, and marriage problems. These are serious issues that need to be addressed appropriately if our society is to grow and not deteriorate. Families need to have this resource available in order to stay together and not break apart when hardships arise. PLEASE DO NOT let Christian radio stations like K-LOVE lose their freedom and ability to provide this necessary service to the community.

Respectfully, Connie Wooley
